

I feel it would not be in my or anyone else's best interest to repeal the rule prohibiting a media company from owning both a newspaper and tv station. This would only allow us access to one companies point of view on things, if we had to not only read their newspaper but watch their tv programming. This is also unfair to the smaller companies that will be pushed out by the larger conglomerates. I hope you really think about this not from the corporations view point but from the view point of the normal person like me.
